

Aboriginal Shelter

Aboriginal shelter, made of bark and brush.

Old bark house found during early 1900s.

Winter ridgepole lodge

Types of Abshelters

- Northern Style
- Wakashon Style
- Southern Style

Types of Abshelters
 The types of Abshelters vary from the simple bark and brush huts to the more complex ridgepole lodges. The bark and brush huts are made of bark and brush, while the ridgepole lodges are made of bark and brush and have a ridgepole running through the center.

The types of Abshelters vary from the simple bark and brush huts to the more complex ridgepole lodges. The bark and brush huts are made of bark and brush, while the ridgepole lodges are made of bark and brush and have a ridgepole running through the center.

Types of Abshelters
 The types of Abshelters vary from the simple bark and brush huts to the more complex ridgepole lodges. The bark and brush huts are made of bark and brush, while the ridgepole lodges are made of bark and brush and have a ridgepole running through the center.

The types of Abshelters vary from the simple bark and brush huts to the more complex ridgepole lodges. The bark and brush huts are made of bark and brush, while the ridgepole lodges are made of bark and brush and have a ridgepole running through the center.